Interpersonal

1. Within a group of 4 each student will share information about an animal that is in danger using the subjunctive of emotion and opinion. They will ask each other questions about why it is important to protect this species. For grading purposes this conversation can be recorded with an iphone, iPad or computer and uploaded to the teacher’s communication platform.

2. Students will describe on the class blog or communication platform an experience they had in the natural world that changed their perspective, moved them, or was meaningful to them in some way. They will use the subjunctive of opinion to express their views.

Presentational Final project instructions for students:

1. You have been studying the beauty and problems in the natural world. In your group you will be assigned a specific region in the francophone world that has endangered species. After you have researched this problem create a power point/prezi in which you do the following: (1) identify the problem and describe it using visuals. (2) Discuss what is being done to prevent the problem by the government and the local community (3) Make recommendations about what should be done to further protect this endangered species. (4) Give your personal opinion about this particular problem. Use the subjunctive and imperative throughout your oral presentation as well as vocabulary relevant to your presentation. You will be graded on your content, vocabulary, language use, pronunciation, and fluency.

2. Write a letter or email to the IFAW (Fonds International pour la protection des animaux) expressing your concern about the problem of a particular endangered species. Identify the problem, give your reasons for concern citing specific statistics, and make recommendations to the agency responsible for solving this problem. Use the subjunctive throughout your letter and relevant vocabulary you have learned. Bring a rough draft to class for peer editing and revision. Once you have finished your editing, upload your final version to the class wiki or communication platform. You will be graded on your content, vocabulary, language use and mechanics.
